

Story beginning idea

A small child was walking through the woods trying to get back to his mother and father

His little sister was looking for him too

He saw a cave that he remembered they visited, he thought they were there because they would've known he knew that place

He walks into the dark cave and falls out rolling down on a slump on the other side

A man rolls out of the other hole of the cave, blood pouring out of a shattered glass on his cheek and a purple bulge hiding away his left eye, he stood up before falling flat and trying again

He looked around to see what the hell happened

He didn't remember that place

He ran away from the forest and found his old home town

He was looking around with his head tilted downwards

“Oh god don’t tell me I got drunk again”

He reached his home and knocked on the door

Nobody responded

He looked through the window of his old room and... why are all of his old stuff there

He broke open the window and jumped in

He sat there waiting

The sun rose and the sound of the door was heard

A child was crying

The door of his room opened

It was his younger sister... literally

She was confused in why her uncle was in her brother's room

He started bursting to tears, he fell on his knees and embraced her

Swearing it would never happen again

She thought he arrived after finding out about the news and wanted to comfort her, swearing that he wouldn't allow her to go missing as well

She started crying and hugged him back saying "you always cared Uncle Simon"

However he meant something else

He made himself forget about the forest and the event that took place later

A day of trying to find a way out later he found a road leading to his school

There were white strips he had to cross next to the school

Where he saw someone was laying down

He was about to say that it was dangerous to lay on a sidewalk but when he turned her around...

He felt heating violent rage on half of his face, pulling his heart close to hers he said "it's okay, I'm back, I am here, you'll be okay" his voice shaking as he moved his eyes around

"HEEEELP SOMEONE HELP" only a yellow light reflecting his tears

Eyes and head as red as his blood that was the last thing he remembered other than her funeral

In the end we'll see him desperately trying to run back to the place where he saw it happen

After escaping prison the gun shot wound on his knee making him fall over every step he took

When he started physically seeing her he started running

“COME ON! YOU CAN DO IT! DON’T STOP DON’T STOP”

He screamed out before tripping over a rock and falling next to a stop sign

He saw the car pass by with his own eyes...

His neck twisted in rage, his eyes as red as they were that day, furiously screaming with veins popping out of every part of his head like the bodies of snakes entangled with one another as they consume their prey

He shot the wheel of the driver and when the car crashed to another he ran to them

“I’LL FUCKING KILL YOU” was heard throughout the neighborhood followed by a bashing

Once, twice

He took the gun again and hit it against the window

He looked in

saw a man

A woman

And two children in the back

All of their eyes sucking in his last bit of sanity faces melted like candles

Lifeless Eyes held reflections of their... reflection?

Before his weight dragged him back down he noticed a fire on the front of the car

Boom

Crying was heard from the distance

[ Tuesday, August 30, 2022 9:30 PM ] Deda: Does the cave mean life?

[ Tuesday, August 30, 2022 9:30 PM ] Deda: I mean its a difficult life passing like a second

[ Tuesday, August 30, 2022 9:30 PM ] Saba Khazhomia: I actually didn't give the cave a meaning I thought of a story where a child instantly became his future self... or at least the future self he was supposed to be

[ Tuesday, August 30, 2022 9:34 PM ] Saba Khazhomia: I skipped that part of the story to focus on the ending but he was caught by his parents who thought he was breaking into their home, he was sent to jail and after escaping the grasp of the police got his leg shot before he took away the gun and left

[ Tuesday, August 30, 2022 9:34 PM ] Saba Khazhomia: I did say I skipped the middle part

[ Tuesday, August 30, 2022 9:34 PM ] Saba Khazhomia: I didn't want to forget about the ending

[ Tuesday, August 30, 2022 9:43 PM ] Saba Khazhomia: I thought I was going to make a story about his kid self converting to his kid parents but I think that would be too twisted because that would mean he would be erased from the face of the earth